A Large Portion of the River Front Destroyed.

The Town Excited by Two Blazes Occurring at Once.

Many Squares Burned and Nearly a Million of Property Lost.

The Entire Business Portion of the City Threatened - A Sea-going Vessel and Several Wharves Burned.

MOBILE (Ala.,) Oct. 26 .- [By the Associated Press. |-One of the most dis astrous conflagrations ever witnessed in this city began today about noon in Stewart & Batt's shingle mill, and was not gotten under control for five hours and then only after a favorable change of wind. The fire department and volunteers worked with the utmost valor. Three river steamers, vaior. Three river steamers, one ocean-going ship, the Mobile and Ohio railroad wharf, cottonseed oil mills, eight warehouses, three cotton compresses with probably ten thousand bales of cotton, a big ice factory, box factory and large coal sheds, were destroyed; in fact the buildings bounded by the river from Knox street the perham houndary of Knox street, the northern boundary of the city, to St. Louis street on the south, seven streets, and from the river front to Royal street, west, were burned out. The losses will reach probably threequarters of a million, with insurance of $400,000. There was no loss of life, although many firemen were overcome with heat and smoke and had narrow escapes from falling walls.

The alarm for the fire at Stewart & Butts's mill had scarcely come in when a second alarm sounded for the burn-ing of the residence of Mosely F. Tucker on Dauphin near Broad street, which was completely burned. The residence adjoining was destroyed. The two slarms, being followed by a general alarm, caused the greatest excitement among all classes, and soon the report was spread that the entire business portion of the city was in danger and thousands of men, women and children rushed to the women and children rushed to the scene. No one felt safe even in the business portion of the city, and wagons, drays and all kinds of vehicles were engaged in carrying away valua-ble books and papers. More than twenty squares were burned. The tracks of all railroads centering here have been obstructed by débris in the burned district, and trains are de-layed.

By Telegraph to The Times. ATLANTA (Ga.,) Oct. 26.-[By the Associated Press.] A duel to the death was fought near Danielsville Madison county, yesterday, in which William Sanders, a prominent planter, killed William Martin, his neighbor, and was fatally wounded. For some time there has been bad blood between them, which culminated Saturday. Sanders heard shooting in the direction of Martin's house, and in the direction of Martin's house, and iooking out, saw his hogs ruuning. He at once concluded that Martin was shooting at them, so he took his gun and started out.

When asked what he meant by shooting at the hogs, Martin said that he would shoot him (Sanders) if he bothered him, and after a few more words the men began firing. Italians Allowed to Land. NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26 .- The steam ship Elysia, from Palermo, with 1038 Italians on board, landed this morning at the wharf of the Northeastern Railway, and immediately all came ashore, the inspector having found their papers correct. A detachment of police was on anot to preserve order. The vessel has been thirty-one days in making the voyage, and some very rough weather was encountered. Two deaths occurred.

Highest Tide in Years.
RONDOUT (N. Y.,) Oct. 26.—The Hudson River today showed the highest tide in forty years. Brick yards suffered enormously, and millions of brick were lost. The yards between Roseton and Albany are submerged. It is estimated that 4,600,000 brick have been lost in the Kingston District. Fires were put out in the process durning, green kilns were thrown down, and the brick underneath sheds washed away.

PHENIX (Ariz.,) Oct. 25.—Henry C. Rodes, aged 45, a native of North Carolina, suicided here this morning by hanging. His family are living in Las Vegas, from whom he has been separated for the past eight years. It is supposed that despondency family troubles caused his suicide

Do Not Believe in Boycotts or Strikes.

To the People of Los Angeles: During the past two months much abuse has been heaped upon a labor society known as the Printers' Protective Fraternity, a branch of which—No. 33—has recently been started in this city. Handbills have been scattered along the streets charging the Fraternites with being outcasts of society, paupers imported into the State for the purpose of bringing about a reduction of waxes to a starvation point, and threatening a boycott on any merchant who may patronize or do any business with any establishment which might employ them.

uct. As near as I can figure it, the crop will be but little, if any, greater than last year. Outside figurers place in the increase crop at 10 per cent. Well, if this is true, other parties are putting a decrease price of about 25 per cent on the market value of the crop. It therefore behooves the shippers to put up their prices.

RAILROAD NEWS.

The Bean Trade is Booming-Notes of Interest.

There moved Saturday last from this city the third special bean train of the season shipped by A. Levy of Hueneme, Ventura County, consisting of twelve carloads, all destined to Eastern points by way of the Southern Pacific Company, Union Pacific Railway, and the Chicago, Milwaukee and

St. Paul Railway. This train will run solid on special sched-

This train will run solid on special schedule time through to destination.

The beans made a special cargo for the Pacific Coast Steamship Company's steamer Bonita, which left Hueneme and ran direct to San Pedro.

At the same time Woiff & Lehman of Hueneme also shipped three carloads of beans by way of the above routes, which will move with this special train.

The cars all carry large banners, giving the name of shippers, contents of car and point from which shipped.

These heavy shipments of Pacific coast products, advertised thus, will redound not only to the advantage of the shippers, but also to the credit of Southern California, as these cars pass en route from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast through all the principal cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stephens returned from Portland, Or., last week after a sojourn in that country for several months.

The opening of Primrose avenue will meet with a strong opposition from a majority of the property-owners in the assessed district.

BOWERS ON MARKHAM.

He Thinks the Colonel Will be Elected. Among the visitors in the city at present is Hon. W. W. Bowers, Republican nom-inee for Congress from this district. Senator ince for Congress from this district. Senator Bowers has been making an active campaign of the Sixth Congress district. In talking to a Times reporter yesterday about the outlook the nominee for Congress said: "I tell you, Col. Markham is going to poll an enormous vote. I have been all over the district, and I know what I am talking about. My experience is that the State ticket will run ahead of both Congressional, county and district tickets."

Tonight Senator Bowers will speak at the Soldiers's Home and Santa Monica.

The Union constantly rings the changes on the charge that the Fraternity is state that the Fraternity is shall not least that the Fraternity is shall not least that the Fraternity is shall not least that the Fraternity is content and that the fraternity is composed of a band of imported paupers. The truth is that more than three-fourths of the local organization are citizens, voters and tax payers in the State of California and all are American citizens.

The Fraternity does not and will not resort to the disreputable means of threaten ing or bargaining with central committees, candidates or ward politiclans, promising to march certain numbers of voters to the polls like cattle, in order to compel any man to surrender the control of his business.

The Zenith City of the Joaquin plains rich in reason and raisins and rampant with Republican enthusiasm, has set a pace for the balance of the Sixth Congregational district tonight, which it will be hard to keep up with.

As this is the first city in the district which Col. Markham represented in Congress with such brilliancy and satisfaction, we expected it to open a great many barrels of red paint for this occasion, but no one expected it to be sup-plied by the "car-load lot," as has been

Having arrived at the unholy hour that he did, the next Governor did not come down from his apartments until quite late, and when he did show himquite late, and when he did show him-self he was at once taken in hard for a lengthy tour of the great raisin fields, and did it because of his im-perturable good nature; for I feel sure the hours he spent driving, pleasant and interesting as they were, might far better have been utilized in a long rest for the night's parada and speechrest for the night's parade and speech-making; but as I have said, the Colonel Is so good-natured that he would let these loyal fellows who meet to do him honor drag him around on a stretcher before he would complain.

Three o'clock was the hour set for his reception in the Grand Central Hotel's spacious pariors, and from that hour until 5 o'clock he met and shook with a magnetic shake the hands of the hundreds who swarmed up the stairway to greet him. He made great headway all after-

He made great headway all afternoon, and by the time the marching men began to wheel into the brilliant streets for place in the parading column, he had a great throng of zealous friends, newly made ones and hundreds of an older growth, waiting for his appearance on the staircase. When he came into sight a regular Markham cheer went up, which seemed to make Brother Berry's inn rock like a steam tug crossing Humboldt bar.

As the head of the parade reached the hotel the Colone's beautiful four-in-hand dray fell into place, and amid the blazing of great bonfires, the roar of bombs and cannon, the flashing of red fire, sputtering of rockets and nod-

red fire, sputtering of rockets and nod-ding of a thousand torches, making the streets polkadotted with fire, the big Pasadenian started out on his tour of triumph through the broad streets of Fresno.

There were fully one thousand torches in line besides a cavalry company, each member carrying the stars and stripes. This command numbered fifty men and made a most gallant and striking display. The entire array of marches was one of the handsomest seen thus far in this brilliant campaign anywhere, and was the greatest ever seen in the valley of the San Joaquin.

When the right of the line reached the Operahouse not a man of the line of marchers could enter it, as already every aisle was packed with wedges of marchers could enter it, as already every aisle was packed with wedges of humanity, the crowd even trespassing upon and taking up coigns of vantage in the wings of the stage; but for once the great overflow, which at all the colonel's previous meetings has had to go without its palatable Republican pabulum, was provided for. A stage was improvised on a vant corner near by and the orator of Congressional fight six years ago.

Senator Stanford followed in a brief speech, which met with a great reception, and then the only, the slivertongued, the peerless Tom Fitch took the great audience in hand and played upon it as a harpist plays upon the melodious strings. We have heard many magnificent and soulstiring speeches in the past week, but Fitch must be classed out of the usual line. He polishes his sentences until they glitter like gems from the hands of the lapidary and plucks the very stars from heaven to bedeck his magnificent thougts. Yet I question if other stumpers are not greater votewinners and more effective as campaigners, but as an entertainer Tom Fitch is certainly the West's Bob Ingersoll, and as one looks over the field he scarce can see the oratorooming up to take his place when his stars shall pale into that night whose sunrise is on another shore.

We leave at midnight for Tulare. A long and hard day tomorrow stretches out its gaunt fingers to the campaigning colonel, but with the magic of his magnetism he will grasp it and say with his manner, as he says to those who throng about him day by day, Shake.

Pond's Relations to the San Francisco Cons. [San Francisco Cons. [San Francisco Conscile.]]

When asked by a reporter of a Buckley paper to deny the report that he had bargained with Buckley for the San Jose nomination Mr. Pond is said to have taken a few seconds reflection. At first he did not think it worth while to make a denial. He did not want to take any more trouble in this campaign than was absolutely necessary. He apparently had some doubts whether denial would do any good. All ast he braced up sufficiently to declare that he had made no bargain with Buckley. Mr. Pond added that there was no time during the sitting of the San Jose Convention when the San Francisco delegation could have made a combination to defeat him. nominated for Mayor of San Francisco and twice elected, while Buckley has had complete control of the party. The fact of his control has been demonstrated in his selection of candidates for the office of Supervisor. While holding the power to nominate supervisors, Buckley nominated Pond for Mayor. During this long course of political partnership, personal relations may have grown up which rendered bargains unnecessary. There is one thing the public may bear in mind. Bargain or no bargain, Mr. Buckley did not permit the nomination of a candidate for Governor whom he believed to be inimical to himself. There is no evidence that to himself. There is no evidence that Buckley opposed the nomination of Pond, as he certainly would if he had not considered the nomination of Pond as good for him as any that could be made. When the nominations were made at San José Buckley expected to elect the State ticket. He did not forsee the uprising that has since taken place in this city and elsewhere. He might have permitted the nomination of a personal antagonist if he had expected defeat, but he certainly would not have aided in the nomination of a personal antagonist while he expected to elect his ticket. While Buckley remains the head of the Democrat party it makes little difference what kind of to himself. There is no evidence that it makes little difference what kind o men he puts in to do the work. The kind of men who might declare their independence of Buckley while in office will not obtain a nomination at his hands.

Pond's Powder Trust.

In the year 1883 there was incorporated in this city the "Safety Nitro Powder Company" for the manufacof high explosives. In this company E. B. Pond is and has been a director and a large stockholder. This company carries on its works in Contra Costa county chiefly with Chinese

But this is not all About sight months ago this company, with several other local powder companies, formed a pool or trust to establish a monopoly of the powder business on the Pacific coast. Almost as soon as the scheme was under way the trust advanced the price of No. 2 dynamite, the quality of powder chiefly used in mining, from 16 cents a pound to 25 cents, and No. 1 powder from 22 cents to 35 cents, and there is so sign of a reduction in what will the miners of California say to the pretensions of the Demo-cratic candidate for Governor who has been directly instrumental in imposing been directly instrumental in imposing this tax on the product of their toil? Mining is hard work and uncertain work at best, and it will be hard to convince miners that a man friendly to their interests would aid in increasing the price of a necessary mining supply 33½ per cent or more. Mr. Pond, on his recent campaign trip through the mining counties, seems to have forgotten to mention these facts, or, at least, the reports of his speeches contain no allusion to them. The Chronicle is very willing to supply the Chronicle is very willing to supply the deficiency and to show the miners of California that Mr. Pond is largely responsible for Chinese-made powddr costing them so much.

Democrats was started out on its tour for. A stage was improvised on a variant corner near by and the orator of the San Joaquam was put upon it to hold for an hour and a half, with the witchery of his wit, at least fifteen hundred people who could not enter where the main meeting was going on.

Inside, as I have said, there was a surging throng which, as the colonel and Senator Stanford walked upon the same speakers made addresses from the wagon to several hundred persons at the corner of the same speakers made addresses from the wagon to several hundred persons at the corner of the same speakers made addresses from the wagon to several hundred persons at the corner of the same speakers made addresses from the wagon to several hundred persons at the corner of the same speakers made addresses from the wagon to several hundred persons at the corner of the same speakers made addresses from the wagon to several hundred persons at the corner of the same speakers made addresses from the wagon to several hundred persons at the corner of the same speakers made addresses from the wagon to the corner of the same speakers made addresses from the wagon to the corner of the corner o

The colonel made a fine speech, congratulating Fresno upon her people, her wealth and her prospects, and especially thanking the young men of the city who so gallantly stood by him when making the grand tour in his Congressional fight six years ago.

Senator Stanford followed in a brief speech, which met with a great reception, and then the only, the silver-

be very gratifying to him to know that E. B. Pond alludes to him publicly as "Mr. Buckley," and his regard for the Democratic candidate for Governor most be increased thereby.

But the real point is this—If Mr. Pond be so much imbued with the principles of reform and honest administration as he pretends; if he owes his nomination to a spontaneous uprising of the people and not to Chris. Buckley, its most been possible for him to avoid denouncing Buckley and the methods which have given birth to a new word in the language, Buckley, ism? How could a sincere and honest man, even though a Democrat, canvast this State and fail to score Buckley and his followers? How could an honest Mayor of this city, with special knowledge of municipal finances, abstain from telling the story of Buckley and his control of the city treasury?

When Mr. Pond spoke of "Mr. Buckley?" it must have been with full knowledge of what he was saying, and it is safe to say that had there not been some bond between them, Boss Buckley would have been stigmatized as he de-some bond between them, Boss Buckley would have been stigmatized as he deserves and not given the courtesy of "Mr. Buckley."

Who Will Support Buckley?
[San Francisco Call.]

It is not for the interest of any peron to vote for Buckley's candidates, either in San Francisco or the State a large, except those who expect to profit from their election. It is not for the interest of those persons who pay taxes, nor for those who desire to have our judiciary free from reproach, nor those who would have an honest government. We take it for granted, then, that persons who consider carefully the situation of affairs in San Francisco will vote against continuing in power such a corrupt régimé as that dominated by Buckley. Republicans certainly will oppose Buckley's nomi-nees, except that class of Republicans who are as corrupt as Buckley's followers, and will vote against Buckley's candidates. We also take it for granted that there are a large number of Democrats in San Francisco, and in other portions of the State, who are utterly opposed to the plundering schemes which have been in vogue by the Buckley régime. These Democrats know that an honest government canschemes which have been in vogue by the Buckley régime. These Democrats know that an honest government cannot be had under Buckley's ruie. They also know that no Democrat can obtain a nomination for any important office unless he will come under Buckley's malign influence. Now, who should support Buckley's gang of plunderers? Those persons who expect to make money out of the offices dispensed by him will advocate his schemes and do all they can for their elevation to office. There is also another class of persons in San Francisco who profit from having corrupt men in office. We mean that class which does not hesitate to resort to bribery, when it will be to their advantage to do so. We think the Call can safely say that large sums of money are expended to place men in the content of the content of the property of Senator Bearst, and some great work will result.

"He's worth a million and a half." Jones and Smith looked enviously at the table in the corner where the millionaire, with the bill of fare before him, was knitting his brows and pursing up his mouth in the effort to decide what he wanted. After studying the printed slip from top to bottom several times he seemed to have come to a conclusion. the year, the fun of breaking records is confined almost wholly to trotters. Our East em breeders have seen our performances of Stamboul and Freedom and gone us one better by sending the sensational Nelson a track and Beile Hamlin and Justina lowered the double team record to 2:1314. Nelson's performance is open to criticism for the reason the Cambridge track is practically un-known and no one knows whether it is a full mile or not. The great rivalry existing between owners of stallions and the jeal-ousy of the various cities wherein the horses are owned, will always subject the performance of any record-breaker to the closest scrutiny, until it is thoroughly known that the trick was of full length, and the time accurately taken. In Nelson's case, however, there seems to be little room for doubt. Besides doing a mile in 2:10%, he has just trotted a hat mile in 1:03, a 2:10% g. it. Sunol has made the same trip in 1:03%, a 2:05 gait. Sunol's performance is much the best of the two, as she is practically a baby allougaide of Nelson. Senator kose is quoted as saying that Nelson will have to travel in 2:10 to beat Stamboul, and if there is any man on the face of the are owned, will always subject the perform will have to travel in 2:10 to beat Stamboul, and if there is any man on the face of the earth who knows what he is taiking about, when it comes to Stamboul's capabilities, it is Senator Rose. W. S. Hobarts, Stamboul's owner, has given Goldsmith permission to drive Stamboul every Saturday in the week for a record if he wants to, and it is almost certain that before the close of the year Stamboul will reign as king of the stailtons. At the meeting at the Bay District track next month Stamboul, Sund, Freedom, Hazel Wilkes, Palo Alto and Margaret S will all be sent to lower their reords, and some great work will result.

A Feature of Western Dwellings. One feature in the plans of western city dwellings must be very clearly defined. This is their openness. Not only are the windows upon the average larger than in the east, but they are more frequent, as are also bay windows, oriels, etc.; while in the general plan rooms are more closely related, openings between rooms are wider and single swinging doors less frequent.

Several dwellings in Chicago-and there are many in other western citieshave no doors whatever in the first story, except those at the entrance and between the dining room and butler's pantry, curtains being exclusively used. This is certainly carrying out the idea of openness to the extreme, as it is the destruction of all privacy, and of all those suggestive glimpses upon which so much artistic effect of a house depends. - John W. A few months ago one of the unfortunate in-mates in the San Francisco Almshouse was inspired by the sensational statements in the newspapers with the belief that Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla would help him. But without money, how to get it was the question. Finally he wrote to the Edwin W. Its effect is best told in a sub-sequent letter, from which we quote the follow-

MORE APACHE DEVILTRY.

The same dreary story that has been heard with monotonous regularity for so many years comes from Apache lands-this time from just over the Arizona line, in New Mexico. "A small band of Apaches, evidently not more than four in number," are terrorizing settlers, running off stock and committing murders, so far, having killed four persons. "Cavalry has been scouting for weeks without result" and of course "the settlers are very indignant"-as they have a perfect right to be. Bye and bye, when these savages have had enough fun, they will slip back to the reservation and draw their rations from the Government, while their unfortunate victims are left to begin life anew with nothing but bare hands and broken hearts. How much longer will an intelligent people tolerate the sickening policy of maintaining a government breedingground for murderers at San Carlos, ticket, provided as follows: n the midst of a settled country? Is there any other prople in the wide world that would have displayed as much patience as have these Arizona and New Mexico settlers, under an infamous system whish places themselves, their families and their property continually at the mercy of a band of red fiends, who regard rapine as a picuic and murder as a joke?

Surely, it is high time that the San Carlos Reservation, as at present conducted, should be abolished.

THE PRINTERS' CONTROVERSY.

The Printers' Protective Fraternity, a labor organization which has set out to work on equitable principles becountenance strikes and boycotts, has by a few paid agitators, who lack the their vile slanders. There is a flourishing branch of the Fraternity in this city, members of which are employed in the composing room of THE TIMES. After a thorough trial of them, we are impelled to concede the fact that they are as creditable workmen as we have ever had in our employ-faithful, competent, sober, industrious, conscientious. They work hard, earn good wages, live respectably and pay their bills like gentlemen. And yet not a week goes by but these straight forward American craftsmen, who are guilty of no greater offense than attending strictly to their own business, are assailed with such epithets as "scabs," "paupers," "rats, "tramps" and "vagabonds."

The patience which they have exercised under a fire of such taunting epithets is truly astonishing, and marks them as men of self-control and possessed of a moral courage which rises far above mere physical bravado. This morning a committee of the Protective Fraternity publishes an address which is in keeping with their which sets forth the leading principles of their organization. A calm statement of facts like this is worth more in the estimation of a fair-minded public than columns of vituperative, abuse and misrepresentation. The contemptible cowards who utter their anonymous slanders every week can never hope to attain such a standard of manhood. It is as far beyond them as the aspiration for heaven is beyond the howling covote.

The address is commended to the consideration of those who wish to post themselves concerning the merits of the controversy now raging between the printers. Let it be remembered quotes. that the Printers' Protective Fraternity represents organized labor just as certainly and far more creditably than the organization which is attempting cluded in this category. to cry it down and blast it with foolish epithets.

AN ELEMENT OF DISCORD

The Sacramento Bee makes the foiowing remark:

It is of infinitely onore benefit to the State—certainly to the Republican portion thereof—that Leland Stanford shall be rejected to the United States Senate shan that Markham shall be elected Governor. The Bee is a very warm and consistent advocate of Mr. Stanford's reelection to the Senate, and may be presumed to represent the sentiments of that gentleman and his supporters. What is the logical outcome or the Bee's argument? If it is of "infinitely more benefit to the State" that Stanford shall be reëlected than that Markham shall be elected, then every patriotic Republican is justified in scratching Markham for Pond, when he can find a Democrat who is willing to vote for Stanford-on that condition. Nay, more, it would be his duty to do so.

CONVICT ARNOLD RECAPTURED.

Neatly Caught While Venturing to Enter Portland. PORTLAND (Or.,) Oct. 26.-[By the Associated Press.] Arnold, the escaped convict who was arrested last night as he stepped from a freight train which had just arrived over the Union Pacific, confessed today that he is the right man. Arnold is under a life sentence from Union county for killing sentence from Union county for killing a man named Cobb. About three weeks ago, while the Sheriff was taking Arnoid to the penitentiary, he jumped from a moving train in the Blue Mountains and escaped. He wandered about in that vicinity for some time, being furnished food by friends. He finally started for this city in a box car. The conductor recognized Arnold and telegraphed to the officers here, who arrested him on the arrival of the train.

FRESH LITERATURE.

MARIE LOUISE, AND THE DECADENCE OF THE EMPIRE. BY IMBERT DE SAINT-ARMAND. Translated by Thomas Sorgeant Perry, with portrait. (New York: Charles Scrioner's Sons. For sale by Stell & Thayer, Los Angeles.) The author of this charming volume

The author of this charming volume has written within the past few years a series of volumes which have made him one of the most popular of French authors. These volumes are not only the biographies of the eminent women of the French court, but they are graphic pictures of the times which they describe. The author is not above gossip in its good sense, indulging in it far enough to depict vividly the life of the aga of which he writes. The author's work is supplemented by that of the translator, and it has lost nothing through its English rendering. Very vivideare the representations of the momentous times immediately before, during and after the epoch of the great French Revolution. Probably no times in any country were ever so picturesque, so crowded with events, and so peopled with striking characters. characters.

The world is wiser for occasionally lifting the curtain of the past, and it is pleasant when the reader may do so with the help of so pleasant and intelligent a writer as the author of this volume, the clearness and vividness of whose style makes his Memoirs interesting reading from the opening page principles. During his address Dr. Kurtz entered the hall. He was most enthusiastically received.

After Mr. Owen had retired, the chairman came forward and announced that Dr. Kurtz would be allowed half an hour to present the principles he advocated; that after this Mr. Wilshire would reply in half an hour; after which Dr. Kurtz would be allowed ten minutes for the same purpose. Dr. Kurtz was then introduced. The doctor generally defended the principles of the Nationalist party which he claimed generally indorsed those of the Democratic party. Dr. Kurtz said that he had been a Socialist since 1873, and he thought that the principles of Socialism and Democracy were almost identical. "As for the dream of Beliamy, I would be most happy to see it realized," said the speaker. "Wulle I do not belong to any Nationalistic or Socialistic organizations at present, my sentiments have not changed in the least." In closing Dr. Kurtz paid high compliment to Mr. Wilshire, He said that if he had been nominated a few weeks befor 3 he had he might have been the Democratic nominee as well. The Nationalist organization, he said, was as perfect as that of any third party organization he had ever seen. He thought that the best way for the Nationalist party to work out its ends is through the Democratic partyleaders. He then read the Nationalist party leaders. THE AFTERNOON MEETING.
H. G. Wilshire, candidate for Congress on the Nationalist ticket, addressed Club No. 1 yesterday afternoon at Temperance Temple on the subject of "Nationalism or Plutoc-racy, Which?"

He began his speech by hailing the audi-racy, Which?"

He began his speech by halling the audience as fellow-Nationalists. He regretted that there were not more strangers present as he thought it aimost superfluous to enlighten Nationalists on anything connected with the question. He mentioned the charge made in a criticism on the article by Edward Bellamy in the October Forum by the New York Herald to the effect that Nationalists are not studients of political New York Reraid to the elect that Nationalists are not studiants of political geonomy, because if they were they would not believe in Mr. Beliamy's Utopia. The speaker contended that Nationalists are students of politics and are generally better acquainted with the writings of those opposed to them than many of their adversaries.

students of politics and are generally better acquainted with the writings of those opposed to them than many of their adversaries.

Mr. Wilshire criticised Edward Atkinson's last book, as also the writings of David Wells, claiming that both these writers, althouch each arguing from a different standpoint, are equally mistaken as to their conclusions as to the tendencies of the present time. Mr. Atkinson contends that the competition am ng capitalists, tocether with the determined stand the workers are taking in regard to enforcing their demands, constantly tends to reduce the profits of capital. Mr. Wells, on the other hand, acknowledges that the day of competition between capitalists is past, and that it is idle to struggle against the fact, which the constant improvement in machinery and methods of production has demonstrated, that industry can no longer be profitably carried on except on the largest possible scale; nevertheless, he claimed that the present widespread discontent is solely due to the inability of men to adapt themselves to the change of conditions now going on, and that as soon as civilization has become adjusted to the new order all will work smoothly and new avenues of employment will be developed.

The speaker could not understand how a thinker so clear-sighted as Mr. Wells in descerning the trend of modern business can come to such preposterous conclusions, he himself maintaining, as Mr. Bellamy has done, that the tendency to consolidation of capital now going on points directly to the final goal of the nationalization of industry.

The New York Dramatic Mirror asks mestion that must have often occurred to the theater-going public, relating to the as-sumption of false names by so many members of the theatrical profession. It says "The name of Smith is common, but it has been associated with brains as often as most other names. There were Capt. John Smith, Albert Smith and Sydney Smith, for instance. Would not Isabel Urquhart have been just as successful and just as fair to look upon had she retained her own name of Belle Smith? The need for fictitious names on the stage has long since passed away. Their continuance implies a re-proach that is unjust and undeserved."

There is no apparent reason for singling out one actress as a particularly heinous example, particularly as in this case the moample, particularly as in this case the motive for changing the name is apparent on

Last evening a joint debate was advertised to take place between H. G. Wilshire, the Nationalist candid the for Congress, and Dr. Joseph Kurtz, the Democratic nominee for County Treasurer, at Turn Verein Hall.

At 7:30 o'clock the hall was crowded, and thereafter the audience became restive. Finally at 7:35 the meeting was called to order.

The chairman announced that as Dr. Kurtz had not yet arrived it might be possible that he was unavoidably detained. He therefore introduced Mr. Owen, editor of the Weekly Nationalist, whom he said would temporarily entertain the audience.

Mr. Owen made a brief address in which he interviewed and indorsed Nationalistic principles. During his address Dr. Kurtz entered the hall. S.n. Francisco Music and Drama, in an editorial in its last issue, makes a handsome, if somewhat tardy, recognition of this fact, and, as no one can accuse that journal of being unduly blased in favor of the Southern circuit, its statements on the present outlook are all the more satisfactory. Managers are warned, moreover, that "the town is not yet ready to turn out en masse to see anything that may happen along. An attraction must have merit and good handling to meet with average good business." Music and Drama prophesies the future prosperity of Los Angeles, and observes that the theatrical business will naturally share in the general improvement, the signs of which are already apparent.

PENNSYLVANIA ROAD COMMISSION. The Movement for Better Highways Taking Definite Form.

Under an act of the Pennsylvania legislature passed Jan. 22, 1890, a state road commission was established.

The commission was appointed jointly by the governor and the general assembly, and is composed as follows: Appointed by the senate—A. D. Harlan, Chester county; Amos H. Mylin, Lancaster county, and H. K. Sloan, Indiana county. Appointed by the house—John one hand engaged with an open parasol or something of the sort.

H. McCullough, Allegheny; John E. Faulkner, Bradford; John F. Griffith, McKear; John L. Shillito, York. Appointed by the governor—David McCargo, of Pittsburg; Cyrus Gordon, Clearfield; H. S. Goodwin, South Bethlehem; Jacob Bolard, Connecutvilla: Sangual B. Jacob Bolard, Connecutvilla: Sangual B. Jacob Bolard, Connecutville; Samuel R. Downing, West Chester.

At a recent meeting—the first to adopt a definite course of action—Senator Harlan said that it was his idea to prepare a circular bearing certain interrogatories pertinent to the subject, and to send copies to the board of commissioners of each county and also to the chairmen of each county and also to the chairmen of the Republican and Democratic county committees to obtain the sentiment of the people on the subject of road improvement. The senator from Chester didn't want to start out to formulate a spend an hour of a Wednesday afternoon the chairman. He said many farmers in his section didn't know exactly what they wanted at this time, and as they were as much interested in the matter as anybody they ought to be consulted. The commission, after nearly every member had had his say, harmonized on two important points: that every effort should be made to get the views of the people on the subject and that as far as possible the improvements should be ef-fected without increased taxation.

Then Dr. McCullough took the floor in advocating a classification of state, county and township roads. He also raised a point regarding the distribution of state aid for road improvements, if it was decided to grant such aid.

"There are in the state," said Dr. Mc-Cullough, "1,723 school districts outside of cities and boroughs. Now, on the question of state aid which may be asked for and granted, how much would you allow to each for the roads? On the basis of a million dollar appropriation from the state you could give each district over $600. It is settled that we shall ask for state aid, and it is possible that the people of Philadelphia and the other large cities will not be willing that their transcribed was account. taxes shall be expended on country roads. Philadelphia pays more taxes than any other part of the state. I fa-vor the reconstruction of the entire road system, with a view to reducing mileage and increasing stone roads without augmenting taxation."

Mr. Goodwin precipitated a legal argument in stating that cities and boroughs were subjected to higher taxation for roads and streets than the rural districts, and he thought it would be unfair to expect such communities to contrib-ute to the improvements unless they ap-plied to thoroughfares in cities and hs as well as those of the country. Mr. Gordon said they could expect to on nothing if the cities and boroughs were against them. City folks, he argued, were more interested in the condition of roads than country folks. He favored a dual system of roads—one a local system, controlled by the local au-thorities and kept up by local taxation, and the second maintained by state aid, controlled by state authority. These questions were finally adopted:

First. Are you in favor of abolishin the present system of working out road taxes, and paying a cash tax instead? Second. Do you fayor state aid to pub-

Third. If so, how shall it be distributed; to the township or committees? How shall the amount be ascertained; by valuation of assessable property, number of inhabitants, road mileage or otherwise? Fourth. How shall roads be superintended and controlled; by state, county or township supervisors or engineers; and how shall the state aid, if any, be handled the same as local taxes?

Fifth. Are you in favor of convict labor on public roads?

Sixth. Is the stone in your county suitable for road building?

Coal Washing.

A coal washing plant has been erected at a colliery in Yorkshire, Eng. The plant has a capacity of 400 tons per day. but has dealt with 500 tons by the wet process. The system adopted is carefully sizing the smudge and automatically washing and rewashing after crushing

The object in erecting this plant was to produce a high class coke out of a mixture of very dirty hard and soft smudge. The coke produced is of uniform quality, and the ash in the coke is steadily kept below 4 per cent. Besides the preparation of the smudge for the coke ovens a quantity of small peat, suitable for fuel, is produced by the washer.—New York Commercial Adver-

Theodore L. Chappelle, who, at the recent session of the grand lodge, held at St. John, N. B., was elected by acclamation its grand master, was born at Charlottetown, P. E. I., on July 20, 1849. He was initiated into St. Lawrence lodge, No. 8, located at Charlottetown, on June 19, 1871, passed the N. G.'s chair in 1873, and became a member of the grand lodge in 1874, whose sessions, with only one exception, he has attended to the present. Having served as grand herald, conductor, guardian, marshal, warden and deputy grand master, he has now the pleasure of occupying the highest office in the gift of the order outside of the sovereign grand lodge.

During Bro. Chappelle's membership he has seen many changes. "Old things have passed away," and the new order has purposes?

Supreme Deputy J. P. Baker is hard at work in Minnesota, and expects to institute several new lodges in the near future. He speaks very highly of Mankato and Still-water lodges in that state.

MASONIC.

A Fine Hall Completed at Jeffersonville.

Mo.—Notes.

The Free Masons of Missouri are congratulating themselves on the completion at Jefferson City of one of the finest Masonic halls in the state. It occupies the entire third floor of a large new bank build-ing, and is very handsome and complete in all details. A new Masonic building is being erected at Saginaw, Mich.

The Knights Templar of Ohio contrib-uted $4,328.91 to the fund for the erection of the Garfield measument at Cleveland. The London Free Mason states that in Spain they have "mixed lodges," which give the degrees to the wives of Masons. as a regular Mason.

The art department of the Masonic library of lowa, at Cedar Rapids, has lately received valuable additions in the way of paintings, bronzes, vases and statues. The department is very interesting.

Hiram lodge, No. 1, of New Haven, Conn., is said to own one of the most complete of Masonic halls. It is located on the corner of Union and Chapel streets, New Haven.
The price paid for it is much below the cost of erection, to say nothing of the land. It is their intention to materially improve the building ar and an elevator. When this is accomplished the older members of this property leading the older members of this property leading the older members of this ancient lodge will be able to attend, and a larger attendance of members may be ex-

A correspondent of The Bec Hive, writing from North Anderst, O., says of the membership in the state: "Taking the last Bec Hive as a basis for figures it shows about 3,100 Maccabees, divided among 73 tents in 28 counties. This gives each tent an average of 40 members. But of the 78 tents only 26, exactly one-third, reach the average or are above it, while 52 tents are, with the exception of a few, considerably below it."

The Condition of the Order in Iowa. Georgia's Home—Notes.

William Garret, grand secretary of Iowa, says: "We have instituted 12 new lodges this year, and have now 492 lodges at work with 24,610 members. We gained over 1,000 members last term. I have lotters from two or three places for advice on instituting new lodges. I think by Jan. 1, 1801, we will have 500 lodges and over 25,000 members. We are not dropping so many now for non-payment of dues as in former years and are reinstating more—old members are coming back. All is peace and harmony in Iowa."

SOME FACTS ABOUT * ASPHALT PAVING. *

It is now used in thirty-four cities, the total area and being over four million square yards. Washington, with seventy-five miles laid of asphalt pavement, "aspiring to have the position of the first residence city in our country, counts greatly on its pavements for help in reaching it." Buffalo has over fifty miles of noiseless pavement. On asphalt THE SAME FORCE WILL DRAW A LOAD THREE TIMES AS HEAVY

AS ON ORDINARY STONE PAVEMENT.

Asphalt is clean and healthful. Stone has one-fifth of its surface of joints filled with animal filth. Horses, besides doing more work, last longer, and repairs of vehicles and harross seems asphalt than or work last longer, and repairs of vehicles and harross casecratum the volume of traffic on streets, by Capt. P. Green, U. S. Engineers, several remarkable instances were given of the manner in which emooth asphalt streets have drawn traffic away from some pavements, the most notable instance being in St. Lonis, where, on Olive St., paved with grant te, the daily traffic per foot of width is only 7 tons, while on Locust St. asphalt it is 103 tons, the two streets being parallel, adjacent and similar in every respect, and paved at the same time.

MACADAMIZED ROADS.

A letter from Ridgewood, N. J., to the editor of The New York World says: tion here.

The visitor was much surprised at the signs of prosperity and progress noticeable on every hand. The beauty of the residence portion of the town.

The absorbing question in Bergen county today and in many other parts of New Jersey among progressive cities is good roads. There was quite a contest in the board of freeholders last the care bestowed upon the orange fall over this question. The majority fagroves within the city limits, our vored macadamized roads, to be made handsome churches and schoolhouses, under an act of the legislature of 1889, which provides for the work being done under the bonding system, to be paid in commented upon. Mr. Bowers stated that the town has made wonderful part by the county and in part by the strides since his last visit, and preout passes. Eight of the fifteen freeholders favored laying out two or three roads running north and south, taking in the market towns and making it easy for the farmers to get their truck to the

Miss Belle Housh Bacomas Mrs Buchanan-W. C. T. U. Resolutions-A Soldier Fights His Last Battle.

The marriage of Arthur G. Buchanan and Miss Belle House took place at the residence of the bride's brother, Prof. W. H. Housh, last night at 8:30 o'clock.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," performed by Miss Ida Robinson, the bridesmaid Miss May Buchanan, and Mr. Frank Huss, groomsman, followed by the bride and groom, marched into the large double parlors, and taking their positions in the front bay w under a beautiful wedding bell composed of white chrisanthemums and smilax, were married by the Rev. A. W. Bunker of North Pasadena.

A large number of friends and relatives of the bride and groom were in attendance. After the ceremony was over and congratulations of friends tendered the newly-married couple were shown a substantial evidence of the good will of many friends, in the shape of various handsome and valuable presents. a substantial evidence of the good will of many friends, in the shape of various handsome and valuable presents, among them being a large parior hanging-lamp from Company B. Death of a Veteran. Mortimer Cutshaw died yesterday morning at 9 o'clock at his residence, corner of the county road and Logan street. Death resulted from a fever superinduced by asthma, from which the deceased had suffered ever since he came to California several years

Mr. Cutshaw was an old soldier, hav ing served for four years during the rebellion in the Ninth Regiment, Michi gan Infantry. The funeral will take place at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon from his late residence. Commander McDonald requests that as many old soldiers as can will attend the funeral. The deceased was in his fifty-fourth year. His wife survives him.

QUEEN VICTORIA.

What She Drinks and Why the Court Physician Recommended it.
The London World has been making an inrestigation of what the Queen drinks and has accertained definitely that, upon the advice of ascertained definitely that, upon the advice of Sir William Jenner, she drinks whiskey diluted in water. This is for the purpose of retaining her vigor, renewing her strength and prolong sing her life. The whiskey which she drinks is obtained from the distillery on her own Bailmoral estate, and of course is perfectly pure. Thus the World offers a valuable suggestion in this fact: England's sovereign drinks whiskey under the recommendation of the court physician and on account of its medicinal properties and she drinks it absolutely pure, having i distilled upon her own estate. These facts prove two things: First, that all modern medical two things: First, that all modern medical science demonstrates the superior value of whiskey for sustaining the health and prolong-ing the life; and second, that it must be absowhistoy for sustaining the health and prolonging the life; and second, that it must be absolutely pure. The leading American physicians and chemists have indorsed these views contantly and emphasized the necessity of having whiskey that is absolutely pure. The best medical and chemical tainer in America has shown conclusively that no whiskey known in the market is so pure as Duffy's Mait. It is wholly free from fusion, it is sunlike all other so-called whiskeys and it is doing creat things for the health of the community. So true is this, that while many tempera copied denounce whiskeys an iliquors in goveral, they acknowledge the superior mention of Duffy's Mait, and use it medicinally continually Great care should be exercised, nowever, to secure no other, no matter how hard a dealer may seek to sell you something clse. CATARRH THROAT DISEASES, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS AND CON-SUMPTION Successfully treated by

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M.D. M. D., M. C. P. S. O., 137 SOUTH BROADWAY, Los Angeles, Cal., By his Aerean system of practice, which consists of proper Medicated Inhalations and COMPOUND OXYGEN TREATMENT.

Probably no system of practice ever em-ployed has been so universally successful as the Aerean system of practice as introduced by Dr. Williams for the cure of Catarrh, Throat Discases, asthma and Consumption.

CATARRH.

CATARRH.

Catarrh is often regarded by the patient as a cold in the head, and he often expresses his a ton shment at his remarkable tendency to centract fresh celd. Indeed, he declares that he is scarcely free from one cold before he takes another, and he is always exceedingly careful; its also, a matter of surprise to him that the cold always seems to settle in the head and throat.

At times many of the symptoms of catarrh seem to abate, and the patient is led to hope that the disease is about to wear off; but another class of symptons soon appear and he learns to his horror that, instead of recovering from the disease, it is somewhat changed in its character and has extended to the throat. A sense of weariness is sometimes felt in reading, peaking or slinging; hoarseness at times occurs, a sensation of dryness is felt in the throat, or it appears that some foreign the throat or it appears that some foreign and fattgare; the breath lessens on a little exertion, a short, hacking cough, a peculiar sound in clearing the threat, a feeing as though there was not room enough in the chest to breathe; these and other symptoms occur after the disease has made considerable progress. Then it is a time when consumption is about, to begin its dreadful work. Up to this time the progress of the disease may have been slow and the patient may, in expressing his confident hope that it will "wear off," declare that he has had the catarrh tor years and has not seemed to become much werse, and trusts that he will "by and by" recover. NINTH YEAR.

IN A LONDON PLAYHOUSE

Evening Costumes Dimly Seen Amid the Shadows.

DRESS OF MRS. ALMA TADEMA

And the Embroidered Gauzes of the Begum of Bengal-New Flower Gowns-On Rotton Row in Copper and Gold.

[COPYRIGHT 1890—FOR THE TIMES.] LONDON, Oct. 15 .- | Special Correspondence.] What a cavern of shadowsis a London theater-dim, brown and dingy-where the pale gaslight struggles with the mirk and the jewels at the throats of the ladies flash from dark corners like stars. One is tempted to wonder if a scientist could discover in Londoners any trace of a modification of the eyes. Like owls, which see at night, the English woman seems to perform the ordinary func-tions of life without difficulty in the candle-darkened houses of a city where, if anywhere, the cheerful electric light cries out with a great cry to be allowed to disperse the gloom. Geraldine Ulmar is singing to great approval, and my neighbor in the next stall wears, wound about her throat,

The Butte 11 diamonds that blaze and rubies that burn. The masses of precious stones all over the house glitter like many colored fruit in Aladdin's cave. Everywhere about me full and radiant arms and shoulders are uncovered. their fair whiteness dimly seen giving to the picture all the effect of (squareshouldered, tilted-nosed) houris shining through the fog of a dream.

Everywhere in the half twilight I am conscious of filmy ball gowns, such as American theater-goers would hardly sport even at the Metropolitan Opera House, and which stand out oddly against the background of the dull, heavy upholstery. Gossamer laces and fairy mulls sway mistily to meet sumptuous brocades, plastrons stiff with gold needlework and bodices gleaming with sliver galoon. There is an indistinct vision of the high rolling collars lined with feathers and the fantastic sleeves of the fair and famous queens of the English court of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, mingling with the standard fauttering mingling with the standard standard fauttering mingling with the standard standard fauttering mingling with the standard fauttering mingling with standard of the English court of the fitteenth and sixteenth centuries, mingling with the soft, fluttering ruffs that faintly recall the statlier flutings which encircled the flutings which encircled the neck of Elizabeth when she was crowned the Virgin Queen. There are broad bands of fur warming uncovered bosoms, and flapping frills and battlemented epaulets and deep teatunted ruffles veiling ringed hands. There is a smell of roses and a waving of ribbons and the eyes are strained to follow the beautiful fineness of the traceries and the exquisiteness of the embroidery. It is like a night meeting of fair conspirators, but—the dowing of fair conspirators, but—the dowin front is a mountain of beet and they tell me there would be ghastly revelations of paint and washes if the lights were turned high.

Her Highness the Nawab Begum of Bengal is in the audience with a num-ber of attendants. She is not an espe-cially prepossessing individual, with her small slight figure, sallow face and dark eyes gleaming from deep sockets but her long trailing dress made up of layer on layer of the finest gauze is strange enough to Western eyes to be worth a word of description. Its sleeves are wide and hanging and its collar high like Maria of Medicis's. The outer draperies have a yellowish whiteness like old ivory. They are worked with dragons' heads and quickly flying birds in pale vaporous tints of green, yellow and violet. Where the robe falls apart one catches neath, forming pomps. The whole bodice front is arranged in the same way.

If there must be bazars, the pretty costumes worn by some of the clever English stall-tenders must be regarded in the light of mitigations. The Princess Louise, who seems to be regarded as the flower of the Royal flock, opened one at Richmond in aid of one of the innumerable things that are always wanting this hard-worked family to receive "purses of not less than £1" for their assistance, a few days ago, at which the booths were presided over by young ladies in flower gowns. A poppy dress was quaint and charming, made of pale green crépe de chine the color of poppy buds and leaves, with bright and scarlet petals failing from the elbow sleeves and from the poppy cap of mousseline de sole, wired at the edge to keep it stiff and tied with dark purple velvet strings. The same deep violet color stolen from the center of the flower came out in soft masses of chenille in the folds of the bodice, inside the cap and lining the sleeves. A carnation gown was made masses of chenille in the folds of the bodice, inside the cap and lining the sleeves. A carnation gown was made of soft, green, "Liberty" silk, with pink sleeve and cap-petals pinked at the edges and pale pink bodice folds. The prettiest frock of all, perhaps, was a pale yellow chrysanthemum dress gotten up in much the same fashion, with touches of reddish gold.

A group of girls reminds one oddly this autumn of the flocks of gulls that this autumn of the flocks of gulls that circle and sweep about outgoing and incoming steamers at Queenstown. With every look, every word, long-pointed wings and birds' tails are thrust perkishly up in air. When half a dozen are chatting the rakish feathers dip and rise at all piratical angles. A smart hat seen at the Somerville Club yesterday afternoon was in folds of cream-colored velvet fastened with of cream-colored velvet fastened with gold buckles, a couple of birds with dark bottle-green plumage tilting and all but twittering behind. A small hat of fawn colored felt was equally retty bordered with a wide band of plack astrakhan. Two straps of black relvet, embroidered with steel, rested on the hair behind, and black ostrich ips and fancy velvet were the crown tips and fancy velvet were the crown trimmings.

A trim costume in yesterday's parade on the Row was perhaps especially pretty because worn by a bright and buxom English girl. The bodice of coppery brown cloth had sleeves of coppery gold brocade tied in puffs between the shoulders and elbows. Black velvet ribbon strings held a little muff elvet ribbon strings held a little muff of coppery felt, on the top of which in a knot of brown velvet sat a butterfly all copper and black and gold. If you ooked above its wearer's eyes you saw a large hat in brown felt with a twist of copper velvet underneath and restof copper velvet underneath and rest-ing on the hair. The crown was hiding on the hair. The crown was hidden under a large box plait of coppery gold velvet and a trimining of long black ostrich feathers.

London dames are wearing three-quarter-length capes of fawn or heliotrope cloth with feather-lined collars and gold embroidered yokes, edged with black astrakham. Mrs. Comyns Carr wears a pelisse of ruby and black valvet with a sort of care of jetted velvet, with a sort of cape of jetted guipure. Scarlet opera wraps flash everywhere, edged with ermine and with white silk linings. Scarlet jackets brighten the foggy city; they have astrakham vests and collars and re covered with embroidery or braic ng. ELLEN OSBORN.

He is accompanied by a long-legged dog, something like a Norfolk spaniel, who swims and flounders along to retrieve the birds when shot, or find them to shoot. At his back the man erries a long, light pole about six feet long, litted with a gaff like that used for salmon, and when a bird is retrieved he hooks it up to his hand and deposits it in a basket at his back.

Cases have been known where the weight of the basket has overbalanced a tired man, and he has failen backward to be covered by the yielding marsh, and smothered; his dog going for help, but returning too late. At night, in the fall, it is a weird sight to see these hunters come striding through the dusk, looking like giants from some past age returned to life.

right at dead water, but with a running tide it is an easy matter, if they are well anchored. Late last year, I saw a set of imported decoys which took my fancy, and which any one might make. They were called profile decoys. Each bird was made of two pieces of thin wood. One night make a first flow, diving like giants of two pieces of thin wood. One night make the birds were flying over or sidewise, the two views gave the shape of a duck. With these decoys was a large triangular frame, on which they could be placed in any position desired, and being floated, were held in position by lead sinkers, attached to the frame. The strong point in favor of these profile decoys lay in the fact that the ducks, frame, ropes and sinkers, could all be packed up and carried in an ordinary hand bag.

Most of the duck-shooting is done from "sink-boxes." The best way for the man who wants fun, and has not much time to spare, is to go to some ducking center adjacent to his locality, and hire a professional who has decoys and can "call." These men are to be each. When the ducks came in the fact that the ducks, frame, ropes and sinkers, could all be packed up and carried in an ordinary hand bag.

The outfit of the Chesapeake bay men, collectively, is said to represent a value of $100,000. The pay for the men avorage about five dollars a day, with outfit, the price ranging from three to ten dollars, according to locality. Joseph could shufile you off a cheese omelet or a sublime of frogs' saddles that would have given Brillat-Savarin chronic jaundice through simple envy, but when it came to those viands for which the Vander-bilt craw ever and anon yearned—ah, that was quite another thing. Mon-sieur had got used to the applause of the Parisian public; instead of that he found in New York only faint praise at best, and sometimes—yes, too often, the inappreciative Yankee milat best, and sometimes—yes, too often, the inappreciative Yankee millionnaire presumed to suggest that he couldn't dish things up "half as well as my mother used to." Monsfeur detested griddle cakes—they were plebelan. Yet Vanderbilt insisted upon his griddle-cakes once in so often, and he wanted them served—not with honey of the Alps, but with black, gummy, old-fashioned New Orleans molasses, (Van called it lasses). Paths about a foot wide run here and there through the morasses to the higher grounds where the sheep feed, but they are winding and tortuous. Consequently the inhabitants of the district are a nation of stilt walkers.

The men who drive the sheep to feed follow the winding path with the flock, but they return on stilts by a short cut. The postmen use stilts, and so do the hunters. These marshes are the home of the wild duck and widgeon, but they lie far away from the paths in the most seeluded places, inaccessible to one walking in the ordinary way. So the hunter dons his stilts. These are about six feet from the ground. They are fastened to the ankle and just below the knee with leather straps. At

The Emperor Reads Clippings.

(Boston.)

A reform has recently been made in Germany by means of a newspaper clipping which was forwarded to Emperor William. It is interesting to know that the emperor has adopted a regular system of clippings, with his more than to a regular system of clippings, with his says: "There'is no longer any public ascandal, any crying bureaucratic outer rage, any case of extreme poverty, or you preform movement in this country of which the emperor is not speedily informed, and that from the best obstantianed that the emperor head of the stream of th will be moderate and will be paid to friends.

The bustle in Tipperary is indescribable. All Ireland has nothing like it to show. Carts of lumber and stones are rushing hither and thither, sewers are dug, grading goes forward with a rush, a good deal of it having been done by volunteers, and there is a fewerish activity about that reminds feverish activity about that reminds one of what we read about Okiahoma. There is nothing of the Western lack of thoroughness, however. Everything is solid, substantial, done to stay. Even the wooden houses seem to an

The summer girl has dis-speared.

The summer girl has dis-spear when the 10-year-old lads of the orphan asylum on the hill beyond the station held a parade and demonstration in protest against the presence of a few sons of boycotted persons, and policemen among them. They were 'disorderly,' and had to be 'disperæd.' There are red-coated soldiers in their hard the coated the coat They were "disorderly," and had to be "disperæd." There are red-coated soldiers in their barracks on the hill, too, but they play tennis most of the time and flaven't been needed in the town yet, nor will they be.

"Weren't there any people in the old town who refused to come out?" I asked one of the shopkeepers in the William O'Brien arcade.

"Oh, yes," said he. "There were two or three who swore they'd stay where they were and pay their rents, landlord who is liked by his tenants, and has, indeed, furnished the land for the building of the new town. His houses, and he has many, will not be vacated, and he will have no difficulty worked grading the streets. Merchants have been driven from their old places of trade before the new ones were ready, and have lost their custom.

There has been suffering for lack of homes and even want of food, but no division of opinion, no backsliding, no treachery. Mr. Smith-Barry's fate, the absolute ruin of a town which was said to pay him a rent of over two hundred thousand dollars a year, shows other English landlords what they may expect now that New Tipperary has shown the way.

Will the new town live and thrive, Will the new town live and thrive, or is it merely a passing whim? I see no reason why I should not answer "yes" to the first question. Sentiment is the most enduring foundation on which to build. But New Tipperary has more than that in its favor. Excepting the market privilege, which is a great exception; it has many ada great exception, it has many advantages over the old town and no disadvantages. It is equally near the railroad station, which lies, indeed, a little distance from both.

-Talk About Some Fa-

in the Great Foggy. City

UNPOPULAR IN ENGLAND.

Mrs. Lynn Linton is one of the most least as the verdict of her own sex makes or unmakes popularity. The sting has never been drawn from her famous articles in the Saturday Re-

Women submit sometimes with

There is a very quaint, wise little chap whose parents reside here in Los Angeles, but like all bright little boys he is wide awake and active, always on the alert. He had taken the back yard for his playground the other day. and his playthings were strewn everywhere, and he had also torn up a newspaper and strewn bits of it here and there upon the grass. His mother coming out and observing the general air of untidiness that the little fellow had succeeded in producing, said to

"Willie you must not throw your playthings about in this manner, and mother cannot allow you to litter up the vard in this way.

Willie stood rebuked and began picking up the bits of paper and gathering his playthings together.
Very soon thereafter he was joined by a little friend and playmate who lived next door, and who in his play began tossing things about and throw ing his toys in every direction. Willie looked on quietly for a moment and then with a dignified air remarked: "Georgie, you must not literature up our yard in this way; mamma will not

Down on San Fernando street, nearly opposite the old Southern Pacific depot, in the rear of the old frame houses which occupy that side of the street, are a couple of buildings which are reached through a narrow alley, and in which an important manufact-uring industry has been establish, the only one of the kind in America.

I dropped in the other day to make a study of this new enterprise and to learn something of the possibilities of this novel venture. It is an industry which will utilize the leaves of the eucalyptus tree which grows so abundantly in our midst. The process is not elaborate, the leaves and small twigs of the eucathe leaves and small twigs of the eucalyptus tree are gathered wherever they can be obtained about the country, and are hauled in a green state to the factory. Here they are cut fine with a knife very similar to that used in the East to cut up corn stalks for cattle. These leaves are then put into a large boiler containing water sufficient to boil them. The steam passes over through a copper worm or passes over through a copper worm or still, where it is condensed and then run into a large tank. Here the water settles and the crude oil rises to the top. The water is run into another tank to be pumped back into the boiler tank to be pumped back into the boiler while hot, thus saving all the oil in it and also fuel. The boiled leaves are dried and used for fuel with a little coal. The crude oil is taken off and putinto another vessel, where it is again volatilized, redistilled and thus refined. The refined oil is caught in a vessel in a separate room and kept scrupulously clean. After the water has been drawn off, the oil, ready for the market, is put up into cans. The company has already about $2000 worth company has already about $2000 worth on hand. But this is but the beginning of manufacturing enterprise in this line. The medicinal vir-tue of the encalyptus tree is well-known, and any industry which seeks to utilize all of its essential properties will prove of great value to this section. There is scarcely a limit to the medicinal qualities to be obtained from this tree, and many valuable products, in addition to the oil, are already manufactured by this company.

Los Angeles needs manufacturies more than she needs anything else. It is the only thing that she lacks to make her great and prosperous. And she has resources enough to multiply her manufactures indefinitely. Thus multiplied they will increase the ratio of our growth a hundred fold. Add to our splendid soil and climate these adjuncts to growth and prosperity and Los Angeles will move on to unex-ampled thrift and greatness.

I saw a country woman and her hus-band, a fine, young, honest-looking farmer, coming into town the other morning with two little lads as much morning with two little lads as much alike as two peas. They were dark-haired and dark-eyed, rosy-cheeked little fellows, full of fun and mischief, and actually the mother, even with her fond eyes, could not tell them apart. "Are you Willie or George?" she inquired, as one of them came running up to her breathless with delight at something he had seen. light at something he had seen.

"I'm George," he said, "and there Willie was looking in at a window Willie was looking in at a window where was a display of choice candles, and his "sweet tooth" was clamoring for something to satisfy its longings. The father gave the little chaps a quarter, and took his wife in to treat her to ice cream, and I doubt if there was a happier family on the whole round globe than were they as they sat there enjoying their feast.

And there was no selfishness in their gladness. A little stranger tot toddled up to them and as they sat there and held out her dimpled hand for some candy. The boys smiled down upon her in a pretty way, then filled her chubby hands with some of the coveted sweets. "That's good little boys," said their mother, and that gentle word of approval was a sufficient reward for all that they had given. But "virtue has its own-reward." The mother of the little tot noting the boys generosity to the child, sent each of them a plate of choice little cakes and some plump bananas which she took from her basket, and which caused their faces to grow radiant with overflowing delight.

Who does not enjoy these radiant Indian summer days when the closing year lies dreaming in the lap of the sunshine, and in all the soft warm atmosphere there is an indefinite whispar of the coming received. atmosphere there is an indefinite whisper of the coming resurrection of nature? The winds are beginning to blow lightly, that by and by will marshal the clouds with their crystal reservoirs of rain; the sun shines warm, but it sinks earlier to rest in the goldenhued west; the nights have just a touch of crispness, which we drink in like old wine, rejoicing in the strength which it gives us, and the clear perfect glory of these autumn nights. The little humming birds and the butterflies are still golden shower of orders decorates her nights. The little humming birds and the butterflies are still abroad, happy in the mellow sunlight. Yet we can almost catch the echo of Christmas bells, the Christmas tide is so near, and even now the Thanksgiving chimes are just ready to break into melody and ring in this glad holiday of the year. The year dies beautifully in this semi-tropic clime, amid sunshine and bloom and sweetness.

MASONIC.

The Queer Incident Which Gave What Cheer Lodge Its Name-Notes An exchange says that What Cheer odge, a famous Masonic body of Providence, R. I., owes its name to the follow-ing incident: When Roger Williams fled from persecution in Massachusetts as he crossed the river Seakonk, which separates Rhode Island from Massachusetts, he was hailed by some Indians who were standing on a rocky point on the Rhode Island shore with the salutation, "What cheer?" and he at once landed to receive from them a friendly welcome to his new home. Such is the origin of the name. It is also the motte of the seal of the city of Providence, and it is applied to banks, to markets, to vessels and, in fact, to many things which need a good name.

It is noticed as a remarkable circumstance that at the closing communication of Rising Sun lodge, A. F. and A. M., at Nashua, N. H., in June, six clergymen, representing five denominations, were present—Rev. Henry B. Smith, Universalist; Rev. William H. Moreland, Episcopal; Rev. George W. Grover, Congregationalist; Rev. Dr. J. Z. Armstrong, Methodist; Rev. C. C. Spear, Baptist; Rev. E. A. Keep, Congregationalist.

I was in England in 1864 for the pur-

Turkeys for Holldays.

Thanksgiving Day is due in great part to New England, but it has now so to New England, but it has now so spread over the whole land that it is truly national in its character. Thanksgiving turkeys are now being fattened for the markets, for no matter how many pour into the large cities just prior to that important day, the markets seldom get demoralized. High prices always rule just before holidays, and the owner does not run much risk in losing his stock, even if a fall in in losing his stock, even if a fall in prices should-result from an oversup-ply. The cold storage system is so per-fect in the markets that the birds can be kept until the glut is over. More turkeys are raised in the West than in the East, but as a rule they are not as good birds as the carefully-fattened Eastern turkeys. The Eastern tur-keys are carefully fed from their birth, forced to eat and made fat in the fall. picked carefully, never scalded, and always sold for high prices. Careful attention and systematic feeding counts for much in turkey raising, for a vast difference in the prices received. Some seem to prefer the wild turkey to the domesticated fowl, and big prices are now paid for the wild ones. The turkey in its wild state is exclusively American, and was formerly plentiful in the forests from Canada to Florida, but he is so scarce now that he is seldom found except in the woods of the Southern States. Expert turkey. of the Southern States. Expert turkey-raisers advocate the plan of rearing the domesticated turkeys in such a way that they will be able to adopt their original habits. THE CHRYSANTHEMUM FAIR.

THE CHRYSANTHEMUM FAIR. The most notable event of the season in the way of profit and pleasure com-bined will be the great Chrysanthemum Fair that is to be held in the new Armory Hall, Broadway, opposite the Postoffice, beginning next Wednesday evening and continuing until November 7 inclusive.

The display of flowers will be remarkable for their variety as well as their number. It is expected there will be on exhibition between six thought and expectations of the second o sand and seven thousand chrysaathemums, besides a great variety of cut flowers. One firm will display a full-rigged ship about twenty feet long, composed of the very finest flowers, which in itself will be worth the price of admission.

The management have wisely determined to give a literary and musical intertainment every afternoon as well as in the evening, for the pleasure of those people from the country and suburban towns who cannot remain over the night. Many of the best talent in the city have been secured for this purpose. It is intended to make the opening night a grand and notable one. The Mayor will occupy the chair and one of the most talented attorneys in the city will be the speaker of the evening, while the City Council, Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, Board of Education, Board of Supervisors and many of the city clergy will be present and occupy seats upon the platform and assist in the opening exercises, which will be very interesting. There will be quite a number of booths of an attractive nature, attended by the wealth and beauty of

Los Angeles. Lunch will be served every day from 12 to 2 o'clock, while in the evening there will be delicious ice cream, cool lemonade and soda water. No doubt this fair will be well patronized by Eastern visitors, many of whom know very little about the Japanese chrysanthemum, which grows so abundantly in this country. The fantastic shape in which these chrysanthemums have been trained will be a novel feature in plant raising, as some of them have been made to represent animals and fishes and at the same time the five hundred or more varieties given in Japanese as well as in English names will be an interesting study to the botanist. Take it all in all, probably this will be the finest exhibition of fall flowers ever shown in America.

The sea had hushed its murmurs and did lie, As if its soul were passing, while on high, Above its western rim the sun hung red, And golden beams upon the water shed. It lail their deeps seemed turned to liquid The winds breathed not, and passing time was told
In the hushed silence of the coming eve.
No leaf stirred; not a bird did weave
A note of song; no insect's hum,
The warm, still, quiet air was dumb.

The mounts grew rosy red, a flush
Of crimson, through the purple hush
That wrapped them, stole transfigured they,
Like altars of the dying day,
Gleamed, with the glory of the light,
Night thrust her flagers through the grass,
And long, lank shadows every where
Fell on the meadows sleeping there.

Then closed the sun its shining lid,

And by the soft, blue wave was hid,

And day was done.

WOMAN AND HOME.

"I would give anything for a genuine good meal," said a hungry man in my hearing the other day. "I'm tired enough of boarding-house pork and beans, hash and steak and the inevitable dessert of pie. What do you say to our going to housekeeping, wife?" 'There is nothing that would delight me so much. Why, John, I am a famous cook. I was not born in New England to grow up in ignorance of culinary matters if papa was rich. Mother put me through a regular course of training after I left school. and gave me the best of chefs for a

"Though of course I do not propose to keep you cooking and stewing in the kitchen but it's worth everything to know how a thing should be done, and to be capable of directing it. We will go out this very morning and see if a house is to be had, and if we can find one to suit us I will foreway hourding. one to suit us, I will forswear boarding houses and hotels forever."

A little later a young couple might have been seen visiting the different real estate offices in the city and studying the list of houses for sale and to let, until at length something was found to suit their fancy, and with the keys in their pockets away they drove to look at the different places down on their length. their list.

Several were visited, but the last one proved the most desirable of them all. It was a lovely eight-room cottage, with broad verandas, generous-sized bay windows, and a large lawn at its front and sides. There was also an abundance of shade. I all acacias, cypress and palms, and the ever-briliant pepper tree let fall their cool shadows upon the grass; vines run riot over a pretty arbor; and in the rear were a few orange, lemon, apricot and peach trees, with beds of flowers and climbing rose bushes, and everything was clean and sweet—and, as the young wife said. "so homelike."

"What do you say to our buying this?" inquired the delighted husband. "Why, John, will you do it? It is lovely, and it would be so delightful to feel that it was our very own. I never lived in a rented house in all my with broad verandas, generous-sized never lived in a rented house in all my

"Nor shall you begin now, if this etty place is to be bought. We'll go "Nor shall you begin how," be retty place is to be bought. We'll go right back to the agent and see what terms we can make with him." So back they drove, and in a short time everything was arranged and John went away with a clear title to the little home in his pocket, but like John went away with a clear title to the little home in his pocket, but like the good husband that he is, the deed was presented to his wife when they took possession of it a few days there-after, when the work of furnishing it was complete.

I dropped in one day soon after they were fairly settled, and the happy young wife insisted upon my stopping to dinner, and well did she prove the truthfulness of her assertion that she knew how to cook. I never ate more delightful Mulligatawny soup than that placed upon her table and made after the following rule:

"Begin by slicing up six small young onions; fry them brown in butter. Cut up the lean and fat parts of two small slices of ham; try it out in the soup pot and add the fowl or rabbit; cut in pieces and let the meat brown in the pot with the ham till it is slightly colored. Add the fried onions and a clove of garlic, and, finally, two quarts of rich brown stock. Simmer the whole till the meat is tender. Rub two tablespoonfuls of English curry powder to a paste with a little stock and add it to the soap, with an ounce of almonds, powdered to a paste, and a little grated cocoanut if you wish. Strain the soup. Take up the pieces of meat, turn them into shape and put them back into the shape and put them back into the tureen. Squeeze over the soup a few drops of lemon juice and serve it as hot'as possible. It should always be accompanied by a dish of-boiled rice." This was followed by a nice roast fowl with mashed potatoes and vegetables, and such biscuits!

"These are what I call potato split-biscuits," she said, "and this is the rule for them:"

"Bake two large white potatoes:

biscuits," she said, "and this is the rule for them:"

"Bake two large white potatoes; while hot, mash through a vegetable strainer into a stone bread-jar. Into the hot potatoes stir a teacupful of lard and butter mixed, sait and two well-beaten eggs. To this add a teacupful of milk, in which has been dissolved one-half a cake of compressed yeast and a tablespoonful of sugar; stir in a quart of sifted flour. Mix this at 9 in the morning; cover and leave anywhere in the kitchen in winter. At 12 o'clock add to the dough a pint of sifted flour. Set away for a second rising. At 5 in the afternoon, turn out the dough, on a biscuit-board and, with just sufficient flour to handle it, roll out and cut with biscuit cutter, placing them in a baking pan, one on top of the other. Throw a towel over them and let them rise two hours, beking them in a quick oven for a 7-o'clock tea." ing them in a quick oven for a 7-o'clock

And, O, I must tell you how I make my fruit rush. I beat two eggs and two-thirds of a cupful of sugar until light, add a teaspoonful of butter, one quart of flour and one-third cupful of yeast, mix into a soft dough with warm water and milk. When light, knead in one quart more flour. Make into small cakes, cut each cake open to half its depth with a sharp knife, lay in a long thin strip of citron, then close and press together. On the top press in three or four raisins. Let them rise and before setting them in them rise and before setting them in the oven wash the tops over with a thick syrup made of white sugar and

Safe Experts. In Cincinnati there is a man by the name of John Henry Williams, and this secluded individual sports the reputation of being "the best safe expert in the country." 'Yes, the man who knows the inside and outside of a safe," said he to a re porter, "has about as much as he can do following up successful and unsuccessful attempts to "crack" them by professiona burglars, for no occurrence of this kind takes place without the police sending

A Deaf Cat in High Life. Snowball is one of the best known Angoras in the city, and although she is but 4 years of age she is the mother of seventeen kittens, every one of which has been of spotless whiteness. She weighs twelve pounds and has a tail that waves in the air like an immense banner. Her eyes are sky blue and she never heard a sound in her life. She has been thoroughly trained and knows many very amusing tricks, among which is that of fetching the ball when thrown by her mistress. She performs this with all the fidelity of a well trained retriever, and her ability as a catcher would make Buck Ewing green with envy. Her marked peculiarities are her grace and gentleness and her habit of playing with shadows.

A moving object has no attractions for her, but if a shadow is thrown upon the floor and moved rapidly about Snowball will chase it for hours with a grace and elegance of movement that would eclipse those of the finest ladies in the land. Notwithstanding her fastidiousness in other respects Snowball's appetite is gross, and she prefers raw liver to any other article of diet.—New York World.

CHAPTER III.

The sun dropped its golden beams on the great river, and on its hundreds of little islands that lay asleep upon the bosom of its waters, as the boys went out of doors in the morning, impatient for breakfast to be over so that

11 o'clock and blew away the clouds of mosquitoes and gnats and they went on their swift voyaging happy enough to be relieved of these savage little

About noon they passed a small Indian village, which was built upon the banks of the river. The great spruce forests were behind it. The bluffs were covered with luxuriant grasses. There were numerous Indian cances drawn up to the banks, and several score of yelping Indian dogs ran howling down to the beach as the raft hove in sight and filled the air with their discordant bark. persecutors.

Attracted by the noise which was made by their dogs, the Indians hurried down to the river bank, and by shouts and pantomime, holding up skins of bears and other animals to attract the attention of those upon the raft, they tried to induce them to come ashore, but Mr. Arnold said they had best take advantage of the fine breeze, which, added to the swift current, was bearing them on at a rand rate, so bearing them on at a rapid rate, so they paid no attention to the noisy crowd of dogs and natives, and they were soon hurried out of sight.

These Yukon Indians live by hunting and fishing, and their canoes glide lighty over the waters of the great river. Here is good likeness of Senatee, the chief of all the Fort Yukon Indians.

work on the raft might be commenced It was proposed to build it after the model of one constructed by a govern ment officer who made a successful voyage of 1300 miles upon just such a rude craft from the upper Yukon to the sea. Like his it was to be of logs, with a deck of poles amidships, with a wall tent spread for a sail. The pole deck was to be placed sufficiently high, and protected by canvas, to pre-vent the waves which might break across the raft from doing any damage to their stores.

Breakfast over, it was with a rush

Two other desirable recipes I will give my readers this week, which I am sure will commend themselves by their excellence:

White Sauce for fish.—Three teaspoonfuls of flour, two ounces of butter, small teacupful of the liquor in which the fish was boiled; add four table spoonfuls of milk in which a shallot and a head of celery, or a pinch of celery seed has been boiled, then strained out. Boil one minute and then stir in a teaspoonful of chopped parsley.

Strawberry Blanc-mange—Is red instead of white, and therefore does not strictly deserve its name. A basket of fresh berries, or a pint of preserved strawbeerries, may be used in making it. If fresh berries are used they must be sweetened in proportion of three-quarters of a pound of sugar to a pound of fruit and cooked for ten or iffteen minutes. In either case strain the berries to remove the seeds. Soak a package of gelatine, or the same amout of isinglass, in enough cold milk to cover it. Put a quart of milk over the fire, and when it comes to the boiling point add the soaked gelatine, and shout that the boys went out, followed by their fathers and some dozen or more Indians. There were plenty or m

All the long Arctic day they worked with a will and energy that saw a good deal accomplished when the day's work was done. At the end of a couple of weeks the raft was finished in spite of the frequent rains and other drawbaks. Perfeetly cloudless days are very rare in this northern latitude, but the morning on which the great raft was launched did not show a cloud in the whole sky. The river flowed on gleefully, and the Arctic summer day was as warm read to thermometer registering 90° in the shade, yet a few feet below the surface struction lap the never-melting ice, covered by

But it was not a very exciting voyage, for the character of the country was very much alike all of the way, low and flat, with dense forests of spruce trees covering it. "I don't know, father," said Tom, "how we are ever going to land. This big raft will be rather an awkward thing to handle."

A craft like ours is mighty likely to run up against any obstacle that comes in its way. But don't you remember what you were reading last evening, Tom?"

"O, yes. The writer said the best way to land was to bring the raft close in shore and with one oar hold its head well out into the stream, then with the steering oar the stern end will be thrown against the bank, and there held, scraping along as firmly as two or three men against the bank, and there held, scraping along as firmly as two or three men would do it, and this frictional break would be kept up steadily until we slowed down a little, when one or two, or even half a dozen persons would jump ashore at a favorable spot, and with a rope complete the slackening until it would warrant our twisting the rope around a tree on the bank and a cross log on the raft, where from both log on the raft, where from both places the long rope would be slowly allowed to play out, and this would bring the craft to a stand-still in water so swift as to boil up over the stern logs, whereupon it would receive a series of snug lashings."

"You have the method very correctly, and I perceive that you have read to advantage, Tom, and you see that we are trying to carry these inlog on the raft, where from both

It was a busy day at the old fort. The raft was laden with their stores, and when everything was ready ropes were fastened to it and it was swung were fastened to it and it was swung out into the stream, and with a cheer from those on shore, the voyage was begun. The sail was spread and the wind which blow steadily filled it until it stretched out like the great white wing of a bird and carried them on down the swift current at as lively a rate as if propelled by steam.

The low shores flew by them and in the background the great spruce for ests were seen, and far to the north-ward, looking like a faint blue cloud, where the Romantzoff Mountains, while to the southward could be dis-cerned the far-reaching spurs of the Alaskan range. There they were cerned the far-reaching spurs of the Alaskan range. There they were afloat within the Arctic circle, but the day was hot and uncomfortable, and the air was filled with clouds of mosquitos and millions of small gnats, that were as active and persecuting little enemies as were ever met. The boys tied musquito netting over their hats and faces, and covered their hands with gloves, and in this way measurably warded of their attacks, but Tom said it gave him a smothered feeling to be tied up in such a fashion the day was so hot, and Fred responded that he felt as if he were in an oven and believed that they would find him thoroughly cooked by the time that they were ready for dinner.

Of Long Standing The fashion of telling the history of a thing, whether or not the occasion requires its telling, is a very common one with orators and writers who do not know exactly how else to spin their yarns. A certain worthy merchant was once A certain worthy merchant was once quite unexpectedly called upon to pre-side at a banquet. He wanted to say something in opening the "post-prandial exercises" which would be graceful and sound well, and so he began in the fol-lowing words:

"Gentlemen: The practice of eating meals—aheul—as we have reason to be-lieve, dates back—cohoo!—to the most remote antiquity!"—Youth's Companion.

This is Nym Crinkle's clever and just estimate of Boucicault: "He was not a maker, but he was such a fashioner that genius itself looked on with wonder at his talent, and as the man who digs the trench that brings the water to the thirsty camp is better than the chemist who can make oxygen and hydrogen unite let us believe that the world is less arid than it would have been if Dion Boucicault had not lived."
